MONEY TO PAY FOREIGN LABOR.

Europe took three times as much of our money for woolen goods in a given time under Democratic as it did under Republican legislation. And no American bought a single garment at retail cheaper on that account. It is a clear loss.

A LOT OF DAMAGE TO REPAIR.

Henry C. Frick, lately returned from a visit to Europe is quoted in a Pittsburgh dispatch to the Philadelphia Ledger as saying that the upset in business affairs is directly due to Free-Trade Tariff legislation and to the attitude of the Free-Trade administration toward business. The dispatch adds: "I look for a great landslide for the Republicans in 1916." Mr. Frick went on, "and I would like to see the Republicans get control of the Senate in the next election."

Mr. Frick does not agree with President Wilson in his contention that the present depression is more psychological than real, and pointed out a few examples of retardation.

"They are importing pig iron to this country from China where the workmen get about 6 cents a day. When the Republicans again get into power there will be a lot of damage to repair."

PSYCHOLOGY AND EMPTY CARS.

Eighty thousand empty freight cars are side-tracked along the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad. They are idle because the business of the country, under the beneficent rule of near Free-Trade, is in such a condition that it cannot give them employment.

Most assuredly the management of the Pennsylvania is exceedingly incompetent. Hasn't it yet heard of the way out of such a serious condition? What have its president and board of directors been doing all this time? Don't they know that the administration at Washington has given them the remedy? Take a dose of psychology—shake the bottle well before taking. And don't be put off with something else "just as good." See to it that the name of Dr. Wilson is blown in the glass.

Just take a dose of the Wilson remedy, go to sleep somewhere in the misty cloudlands of theory inhabited by the most excellent doctrinaire and dream that those 80,000 cars are moving.

And then watch them move!—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Approximately 475 lives have been lost in aviation disasters since 1908. More people were killed by bicycles than by aviation.

A Chicago man named Hellmuller didn't like his name. It was too hot and too long for Hans. The court told him he could cut the "hell" out of it.

The river and harbor bill, as it passed the House of Representatives at Washington, calls for an appropriation of $93,529,475, or much the largest in the history of Congress. It is said that an effort will be made to cut down the appropriation in Congress, and, if this fails, the President may veto the whole thing. This would be a pity, for a large part of the money is really needed in unfinished government work. But the bill, as a whole teems with jobs and it may be better to send it back to Congress and go without river and harbor appropriations for a year.—Louisville Post.

FOOLISH PHILOSOPHY.

A man may be a good story-teller and still fail to convince his wife.

The one time when a woman always hits what she aims at is when she throws bouquets at herself.

The suffragette doesn't believe in the equality of the sexes so much as she does in the superiority of her own.

The world would be happier if the average woman was as much afraid of gossip as she is of the mouse.

Of course it is possible to be both blind and deaf, but people who are blind to their own faults are seldom deaf to flattery.

In every community there is an old soldier of whom the other old soldiers say: "He was a 'sutler.'"

The case of the Kansas man who shot his wife for wearing a red kimono indicates that the tastes of the men are improving and that they rapidly are losing the little patience they once possessed.

Trouble maintains a brace office in every home in which there is a loafing man or a gossiping woman.

Give a man abundant leisure and he will employ it in leading a prospecting party in the direction of trouble.

CRUELTY.

The Senator and the Major were walking up the avenue. The Senator was more than middle aged and considerably more than fat, and dearly as the Major loved him he also loved his joke.

The Senator turned with pleased expression on his benign countenance and said, "Major, did you see that pretty girl smile at me?"

"Oh, that's nothing," replied his friend, "The first time I saw you I laughed out loud!"—Harper's Magazine.

Be sympathetic with a man and he will follow you around for more.

The people in our community have seen so many stage villains in top boots that they think everybody on Broadway wears them.

If it were not for fireworks, Christmas presents, watermelons, picnics, circuses, tobacco, lemonade, beer, soda water and household expenses, nearly every man would be rich.

LOCKER QUESTION

Now In Courts—Important Point in the West Virginia Prohibition Law.

Charleston, W. Va.—Judges of the Supreme Court of Appeals have under consideration the issuing of an injunction under the new liquor law, sought by Angus McDonald and Samuel Stephenson, members of the Edgewood Country club. They ask the injunction to prevent members of the fashionable club from bringing or using intoxicating liquors on the grounds. On receiving an opinion from a committee of law years, the club members had voted to permit the use of liquors on its premises. If the court holds that the use of intoxicants may be permitted on the grounds of the club, the locker system of distributing drinks will spring into existence all over the State, it is said, and thus largely annul the new prohibition law.

Aura Meredith and Tom Doran, miners at Rose Siding, Mingo County, went to sleep in Doran's cabin, following their celebration of the last "wet" day. The structure was set on fire and the two men were burned to death. Attempting to arrest Hiram Prince, who was armed with a pistol, Deputy Henry Carlton was killed and Deputy H. Maynard seriously injured before Prince was shot to death by Maynard.

NOTABLE MANSION

Northern Visitor Tells of Grant's Home and What He Found There.—Memories of Boyhood Days of Great General.

(Georgetown, Ohio News Democrat.) "I was at Georgetown, Ohio, Friday last," writes Longfellow Stone in the Cornucopia, News, "which is a quiet little southern town and the boyhood home of ex-President Ulysses S. Grant, and thinking your readers might be interested will give some facts concerning it.

"A friend kindly took me out to the residences in his auto, stopping on the way to show me the little old school house of brick which the tablet embedded in the wall states, 'Ulysses S. Grant attended school here in 1829.' This building which is one story high and 60x30 feet has been painted within a few years a light green color and on the hill about a block on the opposite side stands the Grant residence. Jesse Grant, father of Ulysses, lived at Point Pleasant, Ohio, where the lad was born and moved to Georgetown when he was about a year old in the year 1822. They lived in a small residence on Apple street, while the father built the large substantial house on what is now called Grant avenue and at once started building a tannery across the street. Through the courtesy of Mrs. Geo. Bier, who owns the homestead, I examined the house which is built of brick now painted a light gray color. Two story high with two large fire places and large chimneys. The walls are about 18 inches in thickness, large rooms but low ceilings and large folding doors, the casings of which are finely paneled on their edges in small panels. The general air of the place seemed to give one the sense of hospitality and of fairly well to do—the regular old-time southern home which we of the north can hardly understand. I who have studied it for years, can only say, happiness and much less worry and fret than we of the north are accustomed to. The windows have small glass as of old. In front is a fine porch raised some 4 feet above the walk over which climbs a large Japanese vine which bears flowers of different colors on each branch and growing up the end of the house are ivy vines from the tomb of George Washington. The old well in the rear still offers a nice cool drink from its chain pump of which I partook.

"The tannery across the street was also built of brick and had an addition of wood under which was the horse-power and bark mill which ground the bark for the two large tan vats sunk in the rear to tan the leather. Young Grant commenced at about 8 years of age, to drive the horse and do such other work as he was able when out of school to help his father. At the age of 17 years he entered the Military Academy at West Point since which time we have his history fully written.

"The old homestead has been owned by various persons, but is in a good state of preservation. Thomas Jennings was the second person owning it. He sold to Mr. Crute then he in turn sold to Walter Parker and the tannery to Christiana Single, a flour miller, who erected a flour mill on the site of the old vats which is in full operation today, while with a wooden addition attached to the tannery, his engineer now lives. Mr. Parker sold to a brother of Mrs. Bier, who in turn, passed it to her. A movement is now on foot to raise funds for a large monument to be erected on the Court House Square in honor of the hero who said, 'We'll fight it out here on the old Union line no odds if it takes us all summer.' "I am indebted to Judge Marshall for a portion of these facts, who was a cousin of General Grant and resides at Georgetown.
